POLISH ARMY CHIEF FIXES NEW FRONTIER ON DNIEPER

Pilsudski Only Seeking Granary And Outlet To Black Sea

BOLSHEVIKI FLEE

Rumania Is Expected To Join New Offensive Against Russia

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 11.—The Morning Post's Warsaw correspondent states that General Pilsudski regards the line of the Dnieper as the best natural frontier and does not intend going beyond this which will ensure a granary for Poland and an outlet to the Black Sea. The Polish-Ukrainian agreement gives the former considerable influence in the construction of the Ukrainian Government. Polish experts will predominate on the railways which is the first consideration. The Ukrainians hope to take charge of the rich governments lying in the bend of the Dnieper with Ekaterinoslav at the easternmost point, which, firmly held will be an impenetrable bulwark and will enable the anti-Bolsheviki in South Russia to renew activities.

London, May 11.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Mr. Frederick Roberts, Labor, Mr. Winston Churchill stated that there was a small British military intelligence mission at Warsaw which was not accompanying the Polish forces or engaging in the offensive though it was quite likely that an officer of the mission was keeping in touch with operations. The British War Office had not assisted the Polish offensive but the British and French Governments had formerly helped to strengthen and equip the Polish army, that being an essential part of the policy of the Treaty of Versailles Treaty.

BOLSHEVIK HEADQUARTERS STAFF REPORTED FLEEING

London, May 10.—A Polish semi-official statement says that the Bolshevik headquarters staff is retreating in disorder.

London, May 10.—The Polish cavalry which captured Kieff have handed over the town to the Ukrainians. The cavalry, pursuing the Reds, has reached a point fifty miles south of Kieff. The Bolsheviks have appealed to the Polish peasants, declaring that the invasion is criminal and is being assisted by the Allies.

It appears that the fall of Kieff was due to the Poles turning the line of the River Irpen from the South. The Reds retreated to the east bank of the Dnieper which was a formidable obstacle but the Bolsheviks were compelled to leave their left flank in south Ukraine to its fate. Hence the Ukrainians may soon advance and enter Odessa.

INDEPENDENT UKRAINE PILSUDSKI'S OBJECT

Meanwhile it seems clear that General Pilsudski has no hopes of conquering Russia or of achieving a decisive victory and bringing about a collapse of the Soviet. His best hope is to convince the Reds that the war is not profitable and to induce them to accept his terms, namely, an independent Ukraine and the readjustment of the Eastern Polish frontiers, but this is unlikely until the Soviet has made a great effort and failed.

The General opinion is that General Brussiloff, the new Commander-in-Chief of the Soviet forces, will make an effort to the north of Pripet in the direction of Minsk owing to the greater facilities for concentration of troops in that district along the railway from Moscow. The threat to Minsk will be a direct threat to Warsaw. Meanwhile all eyes are turned to Rumania in view of the reported alliance with the Poles.

London, May 10.—A Moscow wireless message, in reply to the request of the League of Nations Council, agrees to the admission of the League delegation into Soviet Russia with a view to studying conditions, with the exception of the delegates of the nations at present at war with Russia.

RUMANIA IS READY TO JOIN WITH POLES

Copenhagen, May 9.—A Budapest report states that Rumania is making feverish military preparations. A telegram from Berlin states that the Rumanian Premier, General Averescu, has gone to

Tsar's Sister Found In Poverty

Grand Duchess Olga.

The Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the late Tsar and one of the three surviving members of the House of Romanoff, has been discovered living in poverty in the south of Russia. The Grand Duchess was found in rags, living in a box car, by members of the American Red Cross. During the war she had been an indefatigable war worker, and despite the lack of necessities, was striving her mightiest to ease the suffering of the people in her vicinity. This is the first news heard of the Grand Duchess since the fall of the Romanoffs. It was thought that she had also suffered the fate of the Tsar and his family.

PRICE OF RICE REMAINS FIRM

Labor Restless And Nantao Carpenters Will Demand Higher Wages

The price of rice in Shanghai remained firm yesterday. The laboring class is restless. Carpenters in Nantao held a meeting yesterday and decided to demand higher wages if the price continues to rise. Reports of rice-looting were received in Shanghai from various villages in the province.

The City Magistrate, Mr. Shen Pao-chang, yesterday addressed a letter to the Chambers of Commerce in the International Settlement and of Nantao, inquiring about the cause of the sudden jump in the price. He said that he would like to know exactly whether the present rise is due to smuggling or to hoarding.

The Magistrate has also instructed the Rice Guild to devise means of keeping the rice price low.

TURKS JOIN WITH SOVIET RUSSIA IN NEW ALLIANCE

Military Convention Of 20 Years Duration Is Agreed Upon

AIMS AT ALLIES

Armenian Erivan Held In Peril—Britons Are Held As Hostages

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—The Times' Teheran correspondent states that a military convention for a duration of twenty years, between Soviet Russia and the Turkish Nationalists has been concluded, the latter refusing adherence to any Allied terms involving diminished Turkish sovereignty and the former promising to aid the Turks, if attacked by the Allies. By the terms of the agreement the territory of Constantinople is to be Turkish and the Straits free, the fortifications of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus being destroyed.

BRITISH NAVY MEN HELD AS HOSTAGES

The revolution at Baku, which was effected by collusion between the pro-Turkish party there and the Bolsheviks, has placed Armenian Erivan in a perilous situation. Twenty, British, including the Naval Mission at Baku during the revolution, are being held as hostages pending the release of the Turkish Unionists in Malta.

Paris, May 9.—The Conference of Ambassadors has decided to give the Turkish delegation a month wherein to reply to the Treaty which will be handed them on May 11.

LIMIT TURKS' ARMY TO 50,000 MEN

Paris, May 10.—According to the Journal, the Turkish treaty provides for the restriction of Turkish territory in Europe to the extreme point of the peninsula on which Constantinople is situated. The remainder of European Turkey, including Gallipoli, will be handed over to the Greeks. Armenia comprising the provinces of Van, Moukh and Bitlis and part of the province of Erzerum, will be granted complete independence with an outlet to the sea at Batum, which will be internationalised.

The Turks will be allowed an army of 50,000 men.

HERACLEA COALFIELDS WILL GO TO ITALIANS

With regard to spheres of influence, France secures Cilicia, and Italy the vilayets of Konia and Adalia and a large part of the coalfields of Heraclea.

The custody of the Holm Places will be entrusted to a British Commission under the League of Nations. The League will also protect minorities.

GOVERNMENT PARTY APPEARS LOSING IN JAPANESE ELECTION

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, May 12.—The election results in Osaka show a sweeping victory for the advocates of universal suffrage, six of whom have been elected, while the Government party secured only two seats and the Independents three.

Similar results are expected from other cities.

According to advices received in Shanghai yesterday the results in Tokio are also unfavorable to the Government party. For example, the Kokuminto party obtained five seats, the Kenseikai five and the Non-partisan three, the Seiyukai drawing only three—a majority of 13 to three against the Government. This does not compare favorably with the Government's general election forecast as may be gathered from the fact that out of a total of 464 the Government estimated the Seiyukai (Government) party would obtain 277 seats, the Kenseikai 120, the Kokuminto 24 and the Non-Partisans 43. The results in the country districts may, however, tell a different tale than that of the voting in the cities.

QUEEN CONVALESCENT

London, May 10.—Queen Alexandra, who has been indisposed for a fortnight with bronchial trouble, is on the way to recovery. No further bulletins will be issued.

May Preside At Dublin Castle

Lady Decies.

For the first time in history an American woman may rule at Dublin Castle as Vicereine of Ireland, as it is reported that Lord Decies may succeed Field Marshal French as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Lady Decies is the former Vivian Gould, daughter of George Gould, of New York. During the World War Lady Decies served for a time on the Rumanian front as a Red Cross nurse. Lord Decies served through the Boer War and won the D. S. O. for conspicuous gallantry in the Somaliland campaign against the Mad Mullah.

HUNGARIAN PRESS OPPOSES SIGNING OF PEACE TREATY

Country Fears Coercion By Allies—Is Not Afraid Of A Blockade

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—A telegram from Budapest states that the whole press is against the signing of the Treaty. Numbers of deputies have declared that they will vote against signature and urge the breaking off of negotiations with the Entente on the ground that the Entente could not apply coercion and that Hungary was not afraid of a blockade.

Berlin, May 9.—It is officially announced that the reduction of the German Army to 200,000 men will be completed by May 15.

FRANCE AFTER REPARATION

Paris, May 8.—Speaking at the closing session of the Inter-Parliamentary Commercial Conference, M. Millerand emphasised the greatness of France's vitality and power of recovery. The French nation, the Premier declared, was determined to obtain reparation for the devastated provinces. France had resolutely accepted the policy of work and restrictions, but with ten of her richest departments laid waste, it was asking too much to demand that she should think first of the enemy of yesterday, while she still bore the scars of these terrible ravages.

EXPORTS ON INCREASE

"France," M. Millerand continued, "is hard at work. Since the last month of 1919 our exports have been increasing. The first quarter of this year has produced wonderful results, our exports were nearly double those for the same period last year. We have nearly reached the figures of 1913 and if the increase continues, and we have every ground to believe it will, we can count on our economic position being completely restored. American statistics admit that during 1919, the first year of the work of construction, France was second only to Great Britain among European exporting countries. Does that mean that France can carry out this effort of reconstruction alone, without aid from the Allies? It would be absurd to suppose so. One of the great lessons of the war has been that the fates of all nations are linked together."

In connection with the German army reduction to 200,000 men it will be recalled that early in April the Germans asked permission to extend the time in which to make this reduction for three months. The fact that the army's size is now being cut down, or will be on May 15, shows the nation is complying with the Entente's terms within a month and a half of the time originally figured on.

SINN FEIN TERRORISM IN IRELAND ACCENTUATED

Vendetta Against Police Intense—Erin's Rulers Need Armored Cars

MANY OUTRAGES

Hunger-Strikers' Release Adds Fresh Fuel To Campaign Of Violence

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—A hundred Sinn Feiners yesterday attacked the police barracks at Newton Hamilton, Armagh. The five defenders put up a splendid resistance for four hours against a rifle fire and bomb attack. The barracks was sprayed with petrol and set on fire. When the roof fell in the defenders retreated to the yard where they held out until reinforcements arrived.

It appears that the detective who was recently shot in the streets of Dublin, was wearing an armored waistcoat which saved his life, but his condition is critical.

SITUATION WORSE THAN MONTH AGO

London, May 10.—A patrol consisting of four members of the Constabulary attached to Timoleague police station, Co. Cork, were ambushed today; the sergeant and two constables were shot dead and the other constable was badly wounded.

London, May 9.—The murders and outrages in Ireland are growing more terrible every day. The vendetta against the police is becoming still more intense. The Lord Lieutenant and the officers of the Executive are virtually prisoners in the country they are governing and are only able to leave their retreats in armored cars. The situation is far worse than it was a month ago.

The release of the hunger-strikers has added fresh fuel to the murder campaign. On one day during the past week fourteen brutal outrages occurred. Hundreds more go unrecorded as the loyalists are so terrorised that they suffer in silence. In one instance in Galway a young girl was dragged from her bed and her hair cut off. Threats were made to shear off her ears. She is now in a state of collapse. This was because she was seen speaking to a soldier. These outrages are becoming common.

MORE HUNGER-STRIKERS ARE FREED FROM JAIL

The Sinn Feiners hold daily courts and inflict sentences. A number of correspondents confirm these stories. The situation of the loyalists beggars description. Numbers are fleeing from the country. They declare that, if the British people realised their plight, they would be ashamed of their desertion.

Forty-two hunger-strikers were released from Wormwood Scrubbs Prison yesterday and thirteen from Cork Jail.

London, May 10.—The House of Commons this afternoon entered upon the committee stage of the Home Rule Bill. Before the discussions were opened, the Chairman ruled out a number of amendments embodying alternative schemes as equivalent to negatives of the bill, but permitted Mr. Asquith to move an amendment providing for a single Irish parliament with county option for Ulster, for a limited period of six years on the lines of the 1914 act.

Mr. Asquith maintained that duplication of Parliaments, Executives and Judiciaries gave every opportunity for friction, and that the Government's plan was not countenanced by any section of Irish opinion and would not be a stepping stone to Irish unity.

MAKE UNITY EASIER, BRITAIN'S OBJECTIVE

Mr. Bonar Law emphatically asserted that Mr. Asquith did not realise all that had happened during the last six years; while it was true that Irish members had not voted for the Government's bill, it was equally true that they would have opposed Mr. Asquith's proposal.

Ulster's attitude, Mr. Bonar Law went on, was an immense advance on 1914. Whereas Ulster had then insisted on exclusion, she now accepted local Government for the whole of Ireland. Mr. Bonar Law laid stress on the extent to which the question had suffered from uninformed foreign and Dominion comment, which asked "why not let Ireland govern herself? If the

Benson Declares Sims' Charges Are 'Injustice And Outrage' To U.S. Navy

Admiral Rodman, Pacific Fleet Commander, Defends Preparedness Of Fleet In 1917 And Takes Fling At Former Superior

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, May 9.—Admiral Benson, continuing his evidence before the Senate Naval Committee of Investigation, said that Admiral Sims' charges were an "outrage and an injustice to the Navy" and, if they were allowed would be an "everlasting disgrace to the Navy."

Testifying on April 7 at his own request before the Senate committee investigation of the Sims-Daniels row, Admiral Rodman, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, took direct issue with Admiral Sims's charges and criticisms.

Admiral Rodman denied categorically that the Navy entered the war without plans or policies; that it was unprepared to fight, or that it was a mistake to attempt to direct naval operations from Washington. The Admiral said he appeared, through a sense of duty and to "defend the good name of the Navy," the work of which in the war he praised.

READY TO FIGHT

Admiral Rodman declared that never in his more than forty years of service had the fleet been in a better state of preparedness than in the Spring of 1917. Some types of vessels were lacking, he conceded, notably battle cruisers and scout cruisers, but generally speaking the Navy "was ready to fight."

Without any attempt to avoid personalities, Admiral Rodman characterised the Sims letter to Secretary Daniels, which brought about the present investigation, as "very indiscreet," and declared that Sims committed a breach of confidence in making public "an intimate and confidential conversation which should have been held sacred."

The witness referred to Sims's testimony that Admiral Benson, former Chief of Naval Operations, told him prior to his departure for London "not to let the British pull the wool over your eyes; we would as soon fight the British as the Germans."

CENSURE FOR SIMS

"Had Admiral Sims's letter been less indiscreet," Admiral Rodman said, "had he omitted reference to conversation which, as I have said, he should have held secret and confidential, had it been couched in moderate terms such as are usually used in official correspondence, had it been less antagonistic it would no doubt have followed the usual course of such communications—receive due consideration by the proper authorities, and doubtless some good would have come from it.

"His mention and the subsequent publication of a certain admonition which he states he received prior to his departure for London no doubt had its effect upon the cordial relations which heretofore existed between us and one of our closest allies. In every expression of opinion which I have heard concerning it, both in and out of the navy, it has received the deepest censure."

The charge that the navy entered the war without plans or well-defined policies was not correct. Admiral Rodman testified, adding that experience on the General Board had given him opportunity to help prepare such plans, anticipating the probable advent of the United States into the war. These plans were later modified to meet existing conditions, he said.

"MISLEADING TITLE"

Admiral Rodman asserted that the navy had many sources of information and recommendations abroad other than Sims, who, the witness said, implied that the navy had prolonged the war by not accepting all of his recommendations.

Admiral Sims's status abroad was largely that of liason officer, the witness declared.

"His title as 'Commanding United States naval forces in European waters' is partially misleading," said Rodman. "He was in reality a subordinate part of naval operations, with his office in London. He did not personally direct the movements of our fighting ships in the war zone, as the public so generally believed.

Admiral Sims, the witness continued, rendered "most conspicuous and valuable service to the navy during the war," but the "whole responsibility" of winning the war was not placed upon his shoulders.

PRAISE FOR AMERICANS

As commander of the American battleship squadron with the British Grand Fleet during the war, Admiral Rodman told the committee that "the American Navy did its full share most efficiently and splendidly in helping to bring the war against the Huns to a successful and "victorious conclusion."

Sims's criticism that the American battleships sent to reinforce the Grand Fleet were not "homogenous," was made, Rodman said, with full knowledge of the fact that coal-burning vessels had to be

(Reuter's Service)

El Paso, May 10.—General Obregon has sent a message to the new provisional president of Mexico, Adolfo de la Huerta, stating that the revolutionists overtook and dispersed the troops escorting General Carranza from Mexico City and inflicted serious losses on them.

Washington, May 10.—According to a telegram from Mexico City, the newspapers there announce the capture of President Carranza.

Washington, May 10.—Five American destroyers have left Key West for Tampico.

PRESIDENT HOLDS UP RESIGNATION OF PREMIER CHIN

Wants To Grant Him Ten Days Leave—Cabinet Crisis Is More Acute

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 12.—The Cabinet crisis, which has been developing for a week, is now acute.

Chin Yun-peng has resigned both the portfolio of War Minister and the Premiership. The President has declined to accept his resignation, preferring to grant him ten days' leave, the mandate for which will be issued this evening.

It appears probable that the President desires to secure an expression of opinion from Generals Tsao Kun and Chang Tso-lin before accepting Chin Yung-peng's resignation. It is explained that the Premier's health breaking down has caused his resignation.

A most significant feature is the fact that no one of the Tuchuns has replied to Chin Yun-peng's circular telegram announcing his intention to resign. Chou Shu-mou is again mentioned as Anfu nominee but there is reason to believe that the Anfuites desire to appoint Li Hsi-hao Premier while the powerful opponents of the club are strongly advocating the appointment of Hsiung Shih-ling.

Vanderlip Declares Japan Deserves Her Position Among Five Great Powers

American Banker In Speech At Osaka Denounces Cheap Labor—Reference To Shantung Arouses Audience

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, May 11.—The large auditorium of the Public Hall here was filled to overflowing last night with enthusiastic citizens, eager to hear Mr. Vanderlip's speech. Thousands of people were unable to secure admission and were turned away.

Mr. Vanderlip spoke of his impressions as a result of his conferences with the leading men in Japan and also with people representing the lower classes as well as men aspiring to a broader democracy. He explained this by saying: "My opinions have not wholly been drawn from my most courteous hosts."

Mr. Vanderlip declared that Japan fully deserved her position among the five Great Powers and was destined to be the moral and political leader of the Far East. He dwelt at considerable length on the question of the rapid increase of the population in Japan and told his audience how Great Britain had solved the same problem by the development of her industries, how Italy had attempted to solve it by exporting her people and how Germany had failed to solve it by territorial expansion.

VIEWS ON LABOR

In the course of his speech Mr. Vanderlip brought up questions like the labor problem, emigration and Imperialism. Loud and prolonged cheers greeted his statement vigorously denouncing cheap labor and advocating higher wages, a high standard of living and higher efficiency for working men. When, however, Mr. Vanderlip said that exporting her people would not solve the question of the rapid growth of the population of Japan besides being likely to cause trouble with other nations cries of "No! No!" were raised in several parts of the hall.

After explaining the failure of German Imperialism, the speaker declared that he had found no one in Japan who advocated the German method of solving the question of a rapidly-growing population. He was convinced that Japanese statesmen would not repeat the mistakes made by Germany.

Mr. Vanderlip said that his conferences with the highest officials and the elder statesmen in Japan, including Prince Yamagata, had been most satisfactory.

AROUSED OVER SHANTUNG

When Mr. Vanderlip heard that there were thousands waiting outside the hall who were eager to hear him speak, he willingly responded to their appeal and appeared on the steps at the entrance from where he delivered a moving address which was received with enthusiastic cheers.

Mr. Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Chamber of Commerce, following Mr. Vanderlip, referring to California immigration and Shantung, presented the American points of view which the audience generally approved but when he made the charge that Japan had evaded the "gentlemen's agreement" voices vigorously protested.

Also when he said that Americans were unable to understand why Japan did not return Shantung immediately if she meant to return it at all, voices from large sections of the audience shouted "Hear! Hear!" but at the same time a vigorous "No! No!" was heard from many sides. One voice shouted: "None of your business!"

GREET DR. SCHURMAN

The next and last speaker was Dr. J. G. Schurman, President of Cornell University, who spoke as an enthusiastic protagonist of democracy, a spirit which, he said, he found growing in Japan and which in fact with some had already become a veritable religion. He expressed the hope that the spirit of democracy would unite Japan and America. Dr. Schurman received frequent and enthusiastic outbursts of applause throughout his speech.

CLERK VANISHES; FIRM DISCOVERS CHECK IS FORGED

Confidential Man And His Friend Disappear As Fraud Is Found

Theft of Taels 2,100 from the importing firm of Henderson and King, 37B Canton Road, through forgery, is a charge on which K. M. F. da Rosa, a Portuguese who was employed as a confidential clerk, is being sought by the Shanghai police. Abraham Cohen, charged as an accomplice, is also sought.

The police department has issued "Wanted Notices" for the men, giving their descriptions and offering rewards for their arrests, and will circulate them throughout the Far East. It is believed the men are on a vessel bound down the China Coast.

Following the Easter holidays da Rosa, who had been employed by Henderson and King only a short time, failed to appear at the offices of the firm. The management made inquiries at his residence and learned that he had been absent several days.

Investigation of the company's books showed that a forged check for Taels 2,100 had been cashed at a local bank. The check was endorsed with the name of Abraham Cohen. Warrants were issued from the Mixed Court.

Da Rosa is a Portuguese about 30 years of age. He is about 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, has a round face, dark eyes and hair and his last known address was 238 Chapoo Road.

Cohen's nationality was not registered at any consulate here. He is 18 years old, about 5 feet 6 inches tall, has a long face, dark hair and eyes, is of slim build and sallow complexion. His last address was 209 Miller Road.

Reward of $25 for each of the men has been offered by the Commissioner of Police.

Bombardier Wells Loses Heavy Weight Match To Beckett

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—At Olympia this evening Joe Beckett knocked out Bombardier Wells in the third round for the heavy weight championship of Great Britain.

The fight was fast and furious throughout. Wells boxed splendidly and got in several good blows, but Beckett's strength prevailed. In the second round Wells was floored with a left jolt to the jaw. In the third round in a fierce mix-up Beckett sent down Wells with a smashing right to the jaw, and the proceedings interested Wells no further.

LIEUT. MASIERO IS STILL HERE

Lieut. Masiero, the Rome airman, was the guest at a tiffin given in his honor at the Admiralty House yesterday by Admiral K. K. Lang, Commmander-in-chief of the Chinese Navy. Other guests included Admiral Ho Ping-chang, Chief of Staff and Mr. Hsia Pang-ching, director of the Kiangnan Dock.

Lieut. Masiero did not leave Shanghai for Peking yesterday as planned, owing to the failure of Lieut. Ferrarin to leave Tsingtao for Peking yesterday. As soon as the news of Lieut. Ferrarin's arrival in the Capital reaches Shanghai, Lieut. Masiero will proceed to Peking. Lieut. Masiero has been disqualified in the competition and does not desire to fly to the Metropolis before the premier flier engaged in the Rome-Tokio Flight gets there.

Peking, May 12.—Illness has further delayed Lieutenant Ferrarin's departure for Peking and he is now scheduled to leave on Monday.

New Airplane Wing Invention Expected To Increase Safety

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 9.—The Handley-Page Company has achieved an improved design for aeroplane wings which will revolutionise flying. Important as the invention of the pneumatic tire to a road vehicle, the contrivance is most simple and will for a given result reduce aeroplanes to half their present size. It can be applied to any existing aeroplane. The new wing will enable aeroplanes to rise and land with a smaller run and will ensure greater safety and comfort or greater speed. It will increase the load by 20 percent to 40 percent. The invention has passed the official tests. Details have not yet been disclosed.

Warsaw to negotiate a Polish-Rumanian alliance against Russia.

Warsaw, May 9.—It is officially announced that Polish troops have crossed the River Irpen near Kieff and have entered the outskirts of the town.

London, May 10.—In the House of Commons this afternoon replying to Commander Kenworthy, Mr. Bonar Law stated that Poland had not consulted Great Britain before taking the offensive against Russia. Although the provisional eastern frontier of Poland had been laid down, the Allies had not yet been able to determine it definitely. No useful purpose would be served at present, Mr. Bonar Law added, by submitting the question to arbitration or the League of Nations.

Replying to Captain Wedgwood Benn, Mr. Bonar Law stated that the Government were not in favor of the suggestion that the Supreme Council in any form should be made permanent as a coequal or superior authority to the Council of the League of Nations.

ALLIES TO CONTINUE COAST BOMBARDMENT

Replying to Sir George Elliott, Mr. Bonar Law said that he had no reason to anticipate that Hungary would refuse to sign the peace treaty.

Mr. Walter Long, in reply to a question by Major Barnes, said that the Allied warships in the Black Sea would continue to bombard the Russian coasts until the Bolsheviks ceased hostilities with General Wrangel's Crimean army, with a view to discussing an armistice.

Peking, May 12.—General Sung-Siao-lien, the former Civil Governor of Kirin will succeed General Pao Kwei-ching as President of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

USSURI ADMINISTRATION NOW RUNS THE RAILWAY

Vladivostok, May 12.—The Japanese have handed over the railway to the Ussuri administration and trains are now being operated.

The British Military Mission has left for home via Peking and Shanghai.

It is rumored that General Voitchekovsky's soldiers have refused to fight against the Zabaikal revolutionary army.

JAPAN NAMES TERMS FOR TROOP WITHDRAWAL

Vladivostok, May 12.—A telegram from Irkutsk states that the Soviet representative has proposed to the Japanese to arrange an armistice with the Siberian partisans and further to arrange that the Japanese and Soviet troops shall remain stationary and discontinue their advance towards each other.

The Japanese Commander has issued a declaration, stating "Japan cannot allow a form of Government in the Far East which violates all laws. Japan will gladly welcome a Government which protects Japanese subjects and interests and does not endanger Korea and Manchuria. Japan sympathises with Russia and hopes that order will be re-established and economical relations reinstated. She will then withdraw her troops."

Always On Time Motto Of This Drowsy Copper

A burly Chinese Police Constable, yawning and rubbing his eyes, strolled out an alleyway and started, reluctantly, to patrol his beat about two minutes before he was to go off shift.

"Where have you been for the last two hours?" gruffly demanded a member of the foreign force who had been pounding a pavement for one hundred and twenty minutes in search of the cop.

"On my beat," was the bland reply.

A bulging tunic aroused the suspicion of the irate foreigner who had vainly sought the Chinese constable.

"What's this?" he demanded, as he extracted a parcel from the heaving breast of the sleepy policeman.

"I forgot my watch," was the ready explanation as the foreigner unwrapped the parcel and discovered in it:

An alarm clock!

A vast store of miscellaneous supplies that along with medical and hospital supplies was left in Siberia by the American Red Cross when it withdrew from the country is to be shipped to Shanghai and will be sold here. As announced yesterday, the medical and hospital supplies, amounting to more than a thousand tons are to be sent here and will be distributed to mission hospitals throughout China.

The supplies to be sold consist largely of office and garage equipment. The disposal of the goods will be directed by Major E. H. Charette, who came from Vladivostok to direct the distribution of the supplies. Major Charette said yesterday he had not yet received any detailed description of the materials to be sent here for sale. He said, however, that no automobiles or auto trucks will be included, as those used by the Red Cross in Siberia have already been sold.

A picturesque fete, to last two days, May 21-22, will be staged at the former German Club building under the auspices of the McTyeire Sorority. Proceeds of the entertainments will go to the general funds for the erection of an administrative building and dormitories on the campus of the McTyeire High School, 1 Edinburgh Road.

The German Club, which has now been acquired by the Bank of China, will hum with excitement during the two days from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight. Many forms of attractions have been arranged by a big committee of over 100 prominent foreign and Chinese residents.

ITALY MAY PUT BAN ON IMPORTS OF CHINESE SILKS

Temporary Measure Planned Against Luxuries To Improve Exchange

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Shanghai, May 12.—With regard to the report published in the Chinese press that the Italian Government has decided to prohibit, for the time being, the importation of Chinese silks into Italy, Reuter's Agency is officially informed that the Italian Legation at Peking has not received any communication from Rome to this effect. The Italian Legation feels certain that the measure referred to could not in any case have the character of special hostility to China that has been erroneously attributed to it. Most probably it forms part of a general measure against the importation of luxuries into Italy, designed to improve the exchange situation.

Government's proposal were adopted, they could say to Ireland and the world, "We have given you as generous a measure of local Government as we think possible, on conditions which mean that the moment Irishmen can agree among themselves, they can have it completely in one Parliament. The Government's object was to make unity easier."

HEAVY VOTE DEFEATS ASQUITH AMENDMENT

Sir Edward Carson said he regarded the six year proposal as retrograde and impracticable. Although he detested the idea of breaking up the Parliament of the United Kingdom he had pledged himself, if the bill were enacted, to do his best to make the Ulster Parliament a success. Mr. Asquith's amendment was defeated by 259 votes to 55.

Benson Declares Sims' Charges Are 'Iniustice And Outrage' To U.S. Navy

sent because oil was not available. The witness described the service of the American battleships with the Grand Fleet and declared that the American unit received nothing but the highest praise from the officers of the British fleet.

"The American squadron was fully equal to any of the Grand Fleet," said he.

The charge that the Navy Department should not have attempted to conduct operations from a point 8,000 miles from the war zone was criticised by Admiral Rodman, who declared that the "war was not fought and won in London" and that the only place for the direction and administration of the navy's policy was in Washington.

REGRETS INQUIRY

"To have moved our whole administration to London, even though 3,000 miles separated it from the scene of hostilities, would have been a serious blunder," he said. The admiral added that he thought there had been an evident effort to discredit the navy, and his impression was that Admiral Sims sought to give the impression that he had most of the responsibility for running the war and that the Navy Department "fell down on the job" because it did not follow his advice.

Admiral Rodman said that the only recommendation he had to make to strengthen the organisation of the Navy Department was the suggestion that the Chief of Naval Operations be given full authority and entire responsibility.

The witness declared that the "motive which prompted this public investigation is veiled under a smoke screen of words and I can't for the life of me see but that it will discredit the work of the navy in this war, which I know has been most creditable.

"Let me say with the deepest sincerity, that no one could have had more cordial relations in every sense of the word, than those which existed between Admiral Sims and myself in the war zone," continued Rodman. "I regret exceedingly for the sake of the navy's reputation that it was through his instrumentality, directly or indirectly, that this investigation was instituted with its resultant publicity, but I hope some ultimate good may be obtained.

THREE KINDS OF LIES

"The navy doubtless made mistakes during the war, but the methods and means which have been employed in attacking it will of necessity leave prejudice in the minds of those who are not familiar with the navy and its organisation.

"After the Spanish-American War, we had the Sampson-Schley controversy, which directly or indirectly detracted from the well deserved reputation of the navy. And now we have the so-called Sims-Daniels controversy, or investigation, which does the same thing regardless of what the navy accomplished."

On cross-examination, replying to Chairman Hale, the witness characterised as "ridiculous" Sims's statement that lack of American co-operation with the Allies during the first six month of the war prolonged hostilities four months and cost 500,000 lives and a huge sum of money.

"There is an old proverb that there are three kinds of lies—lies, damned lies and statistics," said the Admiral. "This statement I consider to fall in the latter class."

The officer said that he did not agree with Secretary Daniels's statement that in April, 1917, the navy was "ready from stem to stern," but said it was in a good state of preparedness.

How to protect your skin from the harmful effects of this climate

Before going out, protect your skin by an application of Pond's Vanishing Cream. Use it on your hands and neck as well as your face. Compare the fresh, soft condition in which it keeps your face with the drawn, dry feeling that generally follows exposure to the weather.

Based on an ingredient which doctors have used for years for its softening, beautifying qualities, Pond's Vanishing Cream is of the utmost value in overcoming all dryness and restoring the normal pliancy to the skin.

It is absolutely free from greasiness. You can use it throughout the day or you can put it on while dressing for the evening, with the knowledge that not a bit of it will remain on the skin to make it shiny. It has a wonderfully beautifying effect, and as a base for powder it is so effective that one powdering is sufficient for the whole evening. Try it the very next time you want your skin to look its very best.

Only the very freshest, purest ingredients are used in preparation of Pond's Vanishing Cream. It will not grow hair nor down on the skin. Get a jar or tube of it today at any drug or department store.

SCOTTISH MINERS WANT PAY RAISE IF COAL GOES UP

Exportable Surplus Of Fuel Now Available Less Than Before War

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 10.—It is understood that the price of domestic coal will be increased by 14/-; and that of industrial coal by 4/-. The Scottish miners announce that they will make a further demand for increased wages if the price of coal is raised.

London, May 10.—In the House of Commons today in the course of a reply to Mr. R. P. Houston (Liverpool, Unionist) with regard to the inability of the British coaling depot at the island of Perim (in the Straits of Bab-el-Manded) to secure a cargo of South Wales coal, Mr. W. C. Bridgeman, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, said that the available exportable surplus of coal was now less than one-third of what it had been before the war. There had consequently been great difficulty in ensuring supplies to Atlantic and Mediterranean coaling stations, much less to the Allies and to British possessions abroad. He regretted that the Government was not able to undertake to supply adequate supplies of British coal for stations east of Suez, which should resort as far as possible to Indian and South African coal.

Court Decides On Point Of Interest To Shippers

Ruling Is Given For Defendant In The Case Of Mencarini & Co. vs. A. F. Thane & Co.

A decision that has been handed down by Judge C. S. Lobingier of the United States Court for China in the case of Mencarini and Company involves a point of general interest to shippers who contract for purchase and delivery of goods. The case involving the question of the time of shipment of a consignment of walnuts is decided in favor of the defendant. The text of the decision is as follows:

This is an action to recover the purchase price of a cargo of walnuts which plaintiff alleges it "delivered" to defendant "in conformance with" a contract previously entered into between the parties and which, it is further alleged, "the defendant in violation of his contract refused to accept." Defendant denies these averments, and the sole question presented is whether there was such delivery as is here alleged.

TWO PREVIOUS CONTRACTS

It appears that there had been two previous contracts between the parties, the second of which required "shipment: late November, 1919." This period, it is conceded, was extended, eventually, until January 9, 1920; but the delivery in question is not claimed to have been made under any of these extensions but by virtue of a later agreement evidenced by a letter of February 16, from defendant to plaintiff stating

"we now beg to advise you that we will accept the 70 tons of walnuts which you state are being made ready for shipment in Tientsin if shipped by direct steamer to San Francisco during the month of February, but we will not accept them if trans-shipped at Kobe, or any other port, or, if shipped after the 29th day of February." (Ex. D.).

Plaintiff's representative states that the cargo in question was ready for shipment by February 15 at which date he engaged space on the Stanley Dollar, scheduled to sail from Taku Bar on February 26, for San Francisco. It did not in fact sail until March 5 and the cargo was not loaded until March 4. On March 10 defendant was notified of the shipment and on the same day it replied, declining to accept delivery.

WOULD EXCUSE DELAY

There is no question as to the good faith of either party; but plaintiff claims that it was unable to comply with the requirement to ship "by direct steamer to San Francisco during the month of February" and that having done it's utmost to meet that requirement the delay in shipment should be excused. On the other hand defendant relies on the principle that "in the contracts of merchants, time is of the essence" (1) and its manager testifies that the reason for fixing the limit at February 29 was to insure delivery in San Francisco before April 1, since arrival later would require the cargo to be classed at last season's crop and necessitate a reduction in price.

Unfortunately for plaintiff's contention, the Court of Appeals has decided adversely a very similar case, (2) where even the phraseology and the dates were almost identical. There the vendor contracted to ship flour for the defendant "during the month of February, 1912." As further stated by the Court (3).

"The flour was not fully loaded until March 3, and the steamer sailed on March 8. It will thus be seen that there was a breach of the contract in respect to the date of the shipment."

and a judgment against defendant on that ground was affirmed. As in this case the original contract had been made in the preceding October but there was not, as here, an express announcement by the vendee that "we will not accept . . . if shipped after the 29th day of February." Moreover "it was well known to both parties" here, as in the case cited, "when the agreement was entered into, that there was no regular line of transportation between" Tientsin and San Francisco which would insure shipment from the former port before the end of February.

PLAINTIFF'S CONTENTION

Plaintiff invokes in argument, though it does not plead a clause in the original contract exempting it from a responsibility for "non-delivery, delays, part delivery, or any other occurrences caused by force majeure" specifying various casualties not here included "or other acts beyond their control." Aside from the question whether this exemption was carried forward into the new agreement evidenced by defendant's letter of February 16, above quoted, a similar clause was held insufficient to excuse in the case last above referred to. Moreover it seems at least doubtful whether the phrase force majeure (4) could be applied to the facts here shown. As declared in the original English case (5) on the subject.

"when the party by his own contract creates a duty or charge upon himself, he is bound to make it good, if he may, notwithstanding any accident by inevitable necessity, because he might have provided against it by his contract."

There was some testimony regarding the effect of the Chinese boycott in Shantung Province in delaying prior shipments under the original contracts, but since, according to plaintiff's evidence, this particular cargo was ready for shipment by February 15, its delay could in no wise be attributed to that cause.

FOR DEFENDANT

In view of the doctrine announced by the Court of Appeals we have no alternative but to find for the defendant; but while a judgment cannot be rendered in plaintiff's favor, it is authorised, in pursuance of the stipulation between the parties, to dispose of the cargo, which has meanwhile arrived at San Francisco, and apply the proceeds to its own use. There will be no allowance of costs to either party.

STUDENTS HAVE NEW ACTIVITIES

Immediate Enactment Of Constitution Is Advocated

Agitation for the immediate enactment of a permanent Constitution for the Republic of China is advocated by a section of the student body in Shanghai. At a meeting of the students of the School of Comparative Law of Soochow University yesterday, it was decided to arouse the people to the need of a Constitution as a means of uniting the nation; and to invite the various organisations throughout the country to suggest the kind of Constitution the people want for the Republic.

The promoters were organised to conduct an active propaganda for this work at once. They will be conducted under three departments, the department of lectures, which will educate the mass on the question of a need of a Constitution; the department of publicity, which will communicate with the press on the same subject and the department of exchange, which will send exchange lectures to various branch students unions to elucidate on the importance of the subject.

Shanghai Recreation Club Meeting

Annual meeting of the Shanghai Recreation Club was held yesterday at the Club's pavillion. Mr. J. E. Lucas presided.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the presentation of a wedding gift to Mr. T. G. Main, honorary secretary and treasurer, who was also memorialised for his efforts in behalf of the organisation. Mr. J. E. Watson was also thanked by the chairman for his work in auditing the accounts of the Club.

The chairman in his speech called attention to the fact that the club, although fully equipped with gear, is now carrying a larger balance than it did last year.

Achievements in sports were dwelt on in the speech and the chairman paid a fitting tribute to former President George Lanning whose loss he deeply deplored.

On the motion of Mr. H. S. Smyth, seconded by Mr. H. B. Ollerdessen, Mr. J. E. Lucas was re-elected President for the ensuing year.

Mr. H. S. Smyth was unanimously elected Vice-President on the proposal of the Chairman, duly seconded.

The election of the General Committee resulted as follows:—Messrs. Frank Jones, H. E. Peck, H. Veitch, J. L. Wade, E. O. Thomas, R. Philips, E. E. Lever, and A. J. Brown.

The Balloting Committee was elected as follows:—Messrs. R. J. S. Brandt, W. E. Wilson, T. Veitch, H. B. Ollerdessen, F. Madar, H. F. Landers, W. Milner, J. A. Quayle, W. T. Manley, and G. W. Gilbert.

Mr. H. B. Ollerdessen was elected Cricket Captain for the coming season, Mr. T. W. R. Wilson being elected Vice-Captain.

Mr. Galsworthy In War And Peace

His 'Tatterdemalion' Traces Beauty In Two Opposing Conditions Of Human Life—Latest Fiction By Zona Gale, F. W. Bain, Miss Widdemer And Others

Tatterdemalion. By John Galsworthy. Charles Scribner's Sons.

If one were to try to sum up in a single word that for which John Galsworthy stands, both in the matter of expression and of creed, it would seem inevitable that the word should be "beauty." Beauty of expression, in the style whose exquisite finish is flower-like in its all but flawless perfection, yet resembles a hot-house flower in that it is no untrained thing, but at once natural and carefully, skilfully cultivated. Beauty, too, as a creed, expressed in many different books, yet never—to our recollection, at least—so briefly and completely as in the sketch or essay, whichever you may choose to call it, that closes the first section of this volume, "A Green Hill Far Away." There, with the war a thing of the past and peace a blessed fact, the author declares, "There are not enough lovers of beauty among men," and that until there shall be "more lovers of beauty in proportion to those who are indifferent to beauty," wars will not cease. No matter what other sterling qualities men may possess; so long as they lack this one they are, and will remain, fighting animals.

The book is divided into two sections, "Of War-Time" and "Of Peace-Time," titles which quite sufficiently explain themselves. And in war, however ugly it may be in many of its aspects, beauty is not always lacking, nor the expression of a beautiful spirit. The reader will have to go far to find, even in Mr. Galsworthy's own works, anything lovelier or more gently, poignantly appealing than the tale which opens the volume—the story of the aristocratic old English lady who became "The Grey Angel" of a French hospital. Told with the utmost simplicity, and that quiet, unerring choice of diction which is the hall-mark of a master, this tale of a rare, brave spirit encased in a frail, outworn body is one of those few which are to be read, and read again and remembered always. To say that it is the best, not only of the section but of the volume, is not to belittle the rest, but merely to give this one its due meed of praise.

Perhaps the tale which in some ways approaches "The Grey Angel" the most nearly is the very different "Cafard," the story of a French soldier who had in his brain "the little black beetle which gnaws and eats and destroys all hope and heaven in a man"—"Cafard," they call it. Jean Liotard, lying solitary out upon the grass, and due to appear next day before the authorities who would probably send him back to the Front, told himself that there was "no pity, no God," in the world, but only despair, and "the preying of creatures the one on the other." So he thought he believed, until there came to him—no heavenly vision, but a wretched little black dog. "The Muffled Ship" and "A Green Hill Far Away" are alike in being impressions, reflections of a mood, imagination bringing into contrast with the actual that which is at once its antithesis and its complement. Following the great homecoming ship, the ship of life, the ship of those who have returned, comes slowly creeping the "Muffled Ship" of the grey yearning dead, who will never return any more.

SOLDIERS IN HOSPITALS

Among the other of the fifteen tales and sketches in this section "Of War-Time," several have to do with stray soldiers in the hospitals. There was Gray, who had been a Belgian glass blower, and who, released from a German prison after twenty months because of a half paralysed tongue —"The boches . . had put him and two others against a wall and shot those other two"—drifted into a French hospital. At first he wanted to work for France; but soon he asked "only to rest." And then there were the two amusingly different chums, Poirot and Bidan, whose fate was happier than that of Gray. A couple of tales have to do with Germans long resident in England and married to English wives, but not naturalised, men with whose troubles the author sympathises deeply—more perhaps than the reader will, especially in the case of Holsteig, who had lived twenty years in England and married a Scotch-woman, but was quite ready to have his son join the German army. And the son would have gone to join the forces of the Kaiser, had he been able to get to Germany. "The Peace Meeting," on the other hand, is an excellent bit of irony which will be enjoyed by all but the pacifists.

If the first section has its "Green Hill Far Away," the second contains the no less exquisite "Buttercup Night." It is practically impossible to give any real idea of the sheer loveliness of the descriptions of this night of "frozen beauty," when the moonlight "caught on the dewy buttercups; and across this ghostly radiance the shadows of the yew-trees fell in dense black bars." But curious as it may seem, it is in this second part "Of Peace-Time" that one finds the two tales, which of all those the volume contains, have in them the most of horror—"Manna," and "The Nightmare Child." The story of starving, half-insane clergyman is powerful and very dreadful, but no more dreadful than the story the kindly country doctor tells of the poor girl who was one of those creatures "one simply dare not take notice of, however sorry one may be for them," a story both pitiful and dreadful in its utter hopelessness. There was not, and never would or could be, the shadow of a chance for Em'léen. In this, the narrative differs greatly from that other story of the countryside, "A Strange Thing," the tale of two women, one resembling "a young apple tree with the Spring sun on its blossom," while the other was as incongruous, there amid the beauty of that wonderful Spring day, as the old discarded boot was with the ferns and wild plants among which it had fallen.

CYNICAL AND IDYLLIC

For, like the first part of the volume, the second contains contrasts sharp as black and white—the cynical, dramatic "Two Looks," for instance, and the charming, idyllic "Fairyland"—and because of this it is difficult, if not impossible, to write of the volume as a whole. Indeed, its very title explains how exceedingly varied is its content. But unalike as these tales and sketches are in many ways, they resemble one another in this—that always there is the intense feeling for beauty, the power of divination which penetrates beneath the surface-seeming of the men and women who appear in them, the sure and delicate craftsmanship that enables Mr. Galsworthy to show the reader the thing as he sees it, or so much of it, at least, as the reader is capable of being shown. Among the artists in literature of the present day—and they are not so few as some would like to imagine—those are rare who can safely challenge comparison with the John Galsworthy of "Tatterdemalion."

COUNCIL CHARGES MAN IS KIDNAPED

Formal Protest To Consuls Is Made By Chairman Of Local Body

That a resident of Shanghai for many years has been kidnaped by the authorities of the Chinese City and illegally detained without having been given a hearing in the Mixed Court is the charge made by Mr. Brooke Smith, chairman of the Municipal Council, in a letter of protest to Mr. D. Siffert, consul-general for Belgium and senior consul. The letter, which follows, is published in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette. It reads:

"In August, 1919, my predecessor had the honor to address you on the subject of the illegal arrest and detention by the Shanghai Native City Authorities of a resident of this Settlement named Yu Tshung-ling. As a result of his representations and of your kind co-operation and assistance, the unfortunate man concerned was ultimately released from custody in December of that year. It is with extreme regret that I now have the honor to bring to your notice a further instance of the illegal arrest and detention of a resident of this Settlement for the past 30 years, one Ning Ang-ngi, with respect to whom complaint has been made by Chev. G. D. Musso, in terms of the copy letter enclosed herewith.

"From Police inquiries into the circumstances of the case it appears that the account given by Chev. G. D. Musso is correct. On March 24, Ning was visited by one Sung Chien-dau, who told him that his friend, one Yang, was very ill and desired to see him. On Sung's invitation Ning visited Yang's house in the Chinese City, where he found Yang perfectly well and at work. An adjournment to a teashop was suggested, but as soon as Ning had set foot on the road, he was arrested by the Police of the Native City, and transferred to the Shun Pan Ting, where he is held pending the receipt of despatches from Shanse.

"There is no doubt that Ning is a bona fide resident of this Settlement. He has been proprietor of the Tai I Dispensary at 89 Hankow Road for the past 4 years; prior to that he was employed for many years by the Anglo-Chinese, Great Eastern and International Dispensaries and his son testifies that he has been a resident of this Settlement for 30 years.

"I have the honor to protest against this further instance of illegal arrest and detention in breach of the established principle, that no Chinese resident of this Settlement shall be removed without a prima facie hearing in the Mixed Court, and to request that you will be so good as to make the necessary representations to the local Chinese Authorities, with a view to the immediate release and rendition of this resident to the Settlement, whereafter any bona fide charge against him can be laid in the Mixed Court."

Univited Caller At Apartment Of Ross Promotes Road Maps

Mr. Craigie Ross, a sports writer for THE CHINA PRESS and an attache of Arnhold Brothers and Company, was preparing for a trip to Tientsin, where he is to be stationed for his firm.

The genial Craigie had assembled all his glowing raiment, his ready cash and his other effects in his apartments at 9 Tsongchow Road.

Then he went to a cafe for dinner and a dance.

He hurried home shortly after midnight and found the door of the residence and the door of his room unlocked. A hasty survey cast a pall of gloom over him.

A flock of overcoats, suits, shirts, handkerchiefs, jewelry, two Fire Brigade trophies, two other silver cups and the ready cash had vanished.

Police Detective Dunne is on the job and expects to have the culprits and the loot in hand without loss of time.

In the meantime Craigie has been looking over maps and wondering about the road conditions between here and Tientsin.

Clothing Needed For Poor Refugees

Clothing of all sorts, for children and women as well as men, is most urgently needed by many of the strangers within our gates —from war-racked Siberia—just now, and since the termination of the labors of the International Refugee Relief Committee much of the work of attempting to meet the wants of her destitute fellow nationals in Shanghai has fallen upon the shoulders of Madame Desnitsky, president of the Russian Benevolent Society.

At this time of "Spring cleaning" many homes must be throwing out articles of wearing apparel no longer needed. Why not send these things on to where they will be regarded as a blessing? Packages, large or small, may be addressed to Madame Desnitsky, at the Russian Consulate-General, and will be most gratefully received.

Trial Of Sea Cook May Be Delayed For Return Of Wallowra

Trial of the Chinese cook of the steamship Wallowra accused of killing Third Officer Henry Shewan was remanded for one week yesterday by British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Tsang in the Mixed Court yesterday. It is probable, however, that the case will not come up for hearing before the return of the ship to port, which is expected in about three weeks.

In the British Police Court yesterday the inquest over the body of the dead officer was completed. The verdict of Coroner G. H. King was that the officer came to his death through knife wounds inflicted by the cook.

No real motive for the crime was revealed by the witnesses who were examined by the Coroner. The only theory was that the cook was intoxicated and resented a demand of the officer for a pitcher of hot water to use for shaving.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEPPA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. PEELER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD FARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Butler Cement Company Goes Into Liquidation

In accordance with action taken by shareholders of the A. Butler Cement Tile Works Ltd., at an extraordinary meeting held yesterday at the offices of the agents, Messrs. A. R. Burkill and Sons, the plant and property of the company, which has been in operation since 1904, is to be sold. Mr. Willie Blyth Osborne Middleton was appointed liquidator in an amended resolution in which an offer made for the property is accepted. It is understood that a return of between $40 and $45 per share will be realised.

Preceding the extraordinary meeting a general meeting was held when the annual report was read by Mr. A.W. Burkill, Chairman, and four resolutions were adopted. Those present were: Messrs. Burkill, James Ambrose, Gilbert Davies, J.E. Denham and A.E. Algar.

In the first of the four resolutions adopted the Chairman's report and statement of accounts were accepted. By the other three resolutions Messrs. Burkill and Algar were re-elected directors and Messrs. G.H. and N. Thomson were re-elected auditors.

The report read by the Chairman at the first meeting was as follows:

CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

"The accounts for the year ended March 31, 1920, having been in your hands for some time, I will with your permission, take them as read.

"You will see from the accounts that the year's working shows a loss of $383.36, and the balance at credit of profit & loss account now stands at $550.24, which is carried forward to next year.

"Your directors after careful consideration have decided that no further allowances for depreciation on buildings and machinery are necessary at present and you will see from the accounts that ample provision has been made in the past.

"The plant, machinery and buildings have been kept in good repair, the cost of which has been charged direct to working account.

"I regret I have to record a loss on working, and this is due to a diminishing demand for our products, and the increased costs of manufacture."

The address of the Chairman at the extraordinary meeting follows:

SECOND ADDRESS

"This extraordinary meeting has been called as per our circular letter of April 26, 1920, to put before you details of an offer your directors have received for the company's property.

"After protracted negotiations, Messrs. J.P. Bisset & Co., acting as brokers, have obtained an offer which they guarantee, of $30,000,00 less 3 percent Commission for the company's land, buildings and machinery.

"The area of the Land is 11.3.1.6., mow and stands in the books at $5,000.00.

"You will note the buildings which originally cost $15,195.37 now stand at $7,737.04.

"The machinery which originally cost $22,017.39 has been reduced to $9,211.64.

"You will have noticed from the circular letter which was posted to all shareholders, the stocks of materials and products are excluded from the above offer.

"Your directors consider this is a fair offer and in view of the diminishing demand for our tiles and the heavily increased cost of manufacture, strongly recommend the shareholders to accept.

"From figures before me, the company, since its inception has paid only 3 percent per annum on the capital. If we continue to manufacture and basing our figures on sales for the last eight years, we will show a loss on working of say $1,300 a year as we cannot obtain higher prices to compensate for the increased cost of raw materials and labor.

"Your directors estimate that, if you agree to go into liquidation, the liquidators will be able to return an amount between $40 and $45 per share, and we recommend that Messrs. Middleton & Co. (Shanghai), Ltd. shall be appointed liquidators on the terms set forth in the circular.

"It will take in all probability, one year at least to dispose of stocks on hand and close the liquidation.

I feel sure you will agree with me that in view of the long and faithful service of our works superintendent, Mr. Greiner, he should be treated generously by the liquidators, and your directors recommend a grant of $3,000 to be paid him when his connection with the company ceases.

"I will be glad to have an expression of opinion on this matter from the meeting. I may mention that this amount has been calculated for in the figures of $40 to $45 return per share."

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending May 12.

Exchange:—The London price of silver has during the week declined 4⅛d. and 3⅜d. for "spot" and "forward" delivery respectively, the last quotations received being 60d. and 58½d. New York silver is down to 103 and general weakness is reported. Our local rate for T.T. on London at 5/9 shows a drop of 6d. during the week, there was a recovery on Monday to 5/11 when some cover in the shape of Export Paper came out, but this was soon absorbed and the market on weak silver advices returned to 5/9. At the close, very little business is doing and the market is quoted steady.

Stocks of silver in Shanghai are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 41,400,000 a decline of Tls. 1,800,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $23,150,000 a rise of $320,000.

United States Silver Dollars $1,277,000 unchanged.

Estimated total in Taels 63,400,000—a decline of Tls. 1,400,000.

MISTAKES ABOUT DIET

It is a mistake to suppose that you can help your digestion by eating only essential nourishment separated from all waste, for the stomach has been furnished by Nature with the power to separate nourishment and waste material, and organs that are not used become sluggish and atrophied. You must use them, yet not abuse them. Weak digestion is not helped by adopting faddish and unnatural diets. Predigested foods, highly concentrated extracts and starvation treatments are unnatural, and cannot cure indigestion.

Indigestion and stomach troubles are conditions that follow a defective state of the blood, as in anæmia, or after influenza, or even through lack of healthy exercise and fresh air. Also, indigestion causes the blood to be deprived of nourishment, so that there is close connection between a weak stomach and bloodlessness, either being likely to cause the other.

To dispel indigestion and strengthen a debilitated stomach, new, good blood is necessary, and it has been repeatedly proved that the rich, red blood created by Dr. Williams' pink pills has a direct influence on the stomach, digestion and nerves. This new blood revives the appetite, restores the stomach and digestive powers to healthy activity, and steadily imparts strength to those who follow the treatment.

You can improve your health and spirits by beginning Dr. Williams' pink pills now. Go to any dealer for a supply, or send $1.50 for a bottle, ($3/- for 6) to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

FREE.—"What to Eat" is a helpful book on correct diets and the digestion. Send a postcard for a copy to the above address.

Commission of Public Docks,
Portland, Ore.

Gentlemen:

We desire to express our appreciation of the prompt response given to our appeal to you for the building of tanks to handle molasses at the St. Johns Municipal Terminal. In about four months after we made our request the tanks were ready to receive the molasses and we had a cargo here ready to discharge.

When we made application to you again a few days ago for additional facilities for molasses, we were more than pleased to note that you had anticipated our requirements and had advertised for bids for the building of additional tanks.

Permit us to say that we are more than pleased with the efficiency in which you have handled our molasses business. We have received courteous treatment, not only from your heads of departments, but all along the line, and we wish to compliment you upon the organization you have built up, and to express our appreciation of the good service you have rendered us. In the matter of loading tank cars and filling barrels out of storage tanks, the service is all that could be desired.

Yours very truly,
PARROTT & CO.,
Manager.

TIN FROM SOUTH CHINA

Rise In Silver Value May Put An End To Its Production

Prospects for the export trade in tin out of Yunnan Province and South China generally during the current year are very doubtful in the opinion of Consul George E. Anderson. Chinese tin at the present time is produced on the basis of a silver dollar the exchange value of which is substantially that of $1 gold, while Straits Settlements tin, the chief competitor of Chinese tin in the markets of the world, is produced on the basis of a Straits dollar worth about 56 cents gold. With a price of $60 gold per picul for tin in the United States the Chinese producer would secure for his tin about $60 in the local currency gross, whereas at the same price basis in the United States the Straits producer secures $107.15 Straits currency.

This condition has obtained during the whole of the last year with the result that stocks of tin fom the mines in Yunnan have been piling up in Hongkong and to some extent in Yunnan itself. In spite of the fact that production during the last year has been below normal, there is now on hand in Hongkong at least 6,000 tons of tin, of which 5,000 tons are from Yunnan and remainder from the Straits Settlements. This is something like five times the normal stock of the metal usually carried at Hongkong at this time of the year.

After the armistice the large stocks were valued at $130 per picul, a price that declined to $60 a picul last Summer, thus wiping out over half the value of the holdings. Because of the low price, shipments were withheld for most of last year, but during the last three months consignments of tin were made to the United States with a view of realising on them whatever the return might be. The results were that exports of tin to the United States grew from $64,051 for nine months to a toal of $496,115 for the year.

The general disposition among the tin dealers is to get out of their difficulties with as little loss as possible and then drop the business entirely. Only the trade in the metal to Chinese ports has prevented a complete collapse. At all events present returns to the mine operators are not considered enough to justify continued operation, and unless there is a rapid and complete change in the situation the tin supply of South China may soon depart from the markets of the world. The field, it is estimated, can easily produce one-fourth of the entire supply of the world, instead of the one-twelfth it is credited with

Observations

BY T. R. JERNIGAN

WHEN China declared in favor of a Republic, and provided in a provisional constitution that the government should be divided into three branches, it was the form which Montesquieu described as the most perfect. The three branches were the legislative, the executive and the judicial, the function of the first being to make laws, that of the second to execute them, and of the third to interpret their meaning. In the perfection of a government thus constituted the powers entrusted to any one branch were to be so adjusted as not to impair the powers of either of the other two, and in order that the safety of all might be secured it was essential that such powers should be so distributed and balanced as to ensure harmonious co-operation and working of the whole.

The provisional constitution provided for a permanent constitution, and empowered the legislative branch to write this permanent organic instrument. It endangered the equal balance of the three branches by giving to one of the branches the power to prescribe what should be the functions and limits of the other two. The branch which was to enact the laws of the Republic, in the ordinary course of legislation was given the authority to enlarge its own powers to the restriction of the executive and judicial branches and in that way unsettle the equal and appropriate distribution essential to independence and harmony. And it is natural for any division of a government entrusted with superior powers to exercise them so as make that superiority a dominating factor and this is what parliament was charged with doing when it was driven out of the parliament house in Peking.

The act itself in disturbing parliament was a military usurpation and would possibly have been exercised sooner or later regardless of what Parliament was doing or meant to do, but skillful and tactful management of the parliamentary forces would in all probability have defeated or neutralised the deliberate purpose of the military. When Parliament was engaged in framing a permanent constitution, in obedience to a constitutional requirement, it may have allowed itself prerogatives which did not properly square with the prerogatives which were known to be of a parliamentary character, but even had the attempt been actually made to give Parliament a controlling position in the Republic it would not have justified the action taken by the military government against it. There was evidently a way to compel Parliament to move in its constitutional orbit without the interference of the soldier, and it is for the reason that the soldier did and has continued to prevent orderly civil administration that there has been no peace in China since the birth of the Republic.

Until the constitution under which the American people are now living was put into operation, they were under a provisional not entrusted to their Congress to make laws for them, but when they decided to have a more permanent form of government the power to prepare such a framework of government was not entrusted to their congress or any branch of it. The subject of a permanent organic law was too important in its bearing to be determined, except by the most direct act of the people and in their independent capacity. They did not authorise Congress, or any particular branch of the government, to frame the permanent constitution they wanted, but undertook to exercise the authority themselves. And this is the way it was done:

At the time when the American people decided to have a permanent constitution there were only thirteen States, but it was agreed by these States that each would select a certain number of its citizens to represent it in an assembly to be called the Convention of the States, convened for the single purpose of writing a permanent constitution for the United States of America. It will thus be seen that the American people took it into their own hands directly to write their organic law and after they had written it the people were again consulted as to whether they ratified or rejected that instrument of government.

The work of the convention was not to be final until the people had expressed their approval, and unless nine of the thirteen States approved it the instrument was to be ineffective and of no binding operation on any of the States.

It is thus seen that the American people acted twice in their sovereign capacity, in the preparation and final acceptance of their constitution, in that they, firstly, selected representatives to prepare the constitution and, secondly, provided that it should be submitted for their approval before becoming operative as their form of organic government. No greater precaution could have been taken in order to frame a permanent organic law in which the direct agency of the people was influential.

To escape from an undefined organic law, like the British constitution, the American people defined the powers and limitations of their organic law by a written constitution. They have provided that no one department of their government should be supreme, but on the contrary the three departments into which it is divided should be equal and co-ordinate in the working of the government, and they have defined with as much accuracy as the English language is capable of, the line of demarcation between each department. They also provided for an interpreter, whenever any provision of the constitution may appear doubtful in meaning or application and this they have specially named the Supreme Court.

No other government has a tribunal of similar scope and function, but it must not be understood that this court is supreme in the government merely because it is invested with the function to say what the constitution means, for the power always resides with the people to amend the constitution so as to make it mean what they intended. They were not willing that an act of Congress like an act of the British Parliament should be a law which was not to be questioned.

They repudiated the idea of living under a government in which the legislative branch was absolutely supreme and an act of that branch, as in the British government, could not be brought into question but had to be submitted to by every other branch and subject alike.

In the formation of their government the American people were wisely careful not to confide their fortunes and political safety to any one branch or department of government the action of which was capable of being governed by the motives and sentiments of party politics. They preferred and decided that the laws they were to obey must be enacted in accordance with their constitution, which was the supreme chart to guide all legislation and demanded the unqualified loyalty of the citizen. There was no other chart or guide that they would recognise.

And now if it be allowed to say a word to China on the subject of the method of preparing her permanent constitution it would be somewhat as follows:

In view of the fact that China is divided into provinces, the boundaries of which are clearly defined, it would have been the wise and more convenient policy to have had a proper number of representatives from each province to assemble at any appointed place, as a convention to frame a permanent constitution for China. If that policy had been agreed upon, instead of leaving it with Parliament to write the permanent constitution, political elements would have been eliminated as much as possible and the danger of giving to one branch of the government an undue ascendency avoided. A convention, constituted by the representatives of the provinces, would be less susceptible of political influences and better capable of performing the work before it with impartial judgment.

It is doubted if any American Congress could frame a constitution which the American people would approve, and it may be equally as doubtful if the British Parliament could secure British approval to any instrument it might prepare and declare as the constitution of the British Government. It is certain that by having empowered a single branch of her government to frame an organic law, China has now to realise that she has no practical organic law and not even a Parliament that measures within constitutional requirements. The first Parliament, and the one entrusted with writing the permanent constitution, appears unable to function legitimately, and it is not understood how the second one holding its sessions at Peking could in any sense be considered a constitutional Parliament. The end is far more discouraging than the beginning, for at first there was the provisional constitution which gave hope of a free government to follow, but that document has been under lock and key for a long time, and although the government is conducted in the name of a Republic there is not an element of true republicanism in any of the administrative methods.

But why should it be too late for China to establish a government to accord with and safeguard the need of her people? Why should it be too late for the provinces to choose delegates, instruct them to meet in convention and frame a permanent constitution for China? There is no reason why such a provision of safety should be neglected, and the responsibility now rests upon the educated Chinese to do something in behalf of their countrymen who have not been so fortunate. At least these educated gentlemen ought not to submit to have the public affairs of the country administered by the bribe-giver and bribe-taker.

The protest of the school boys against military autocracy and dishonesty may be laughed at as the inconsiderate outburst of youthful enthusiasm, but it points the way for the deliverance of China from a condition never before so bad and disgraceful. A few years ago it was only whispered in the West that China might be dissolving into the worst form of an Eastern government, but the whisper has grown into talk so loud as to be heard in the business centers of all nations, and unfortunately there is nothing in the political or material outlook of China to remove the impressions alike disparaging and damaging to her national character.

Evidently something is badly wrong when the necessity of preserving international peace as well as the general health so presents these questions as to justify the searching inquiries at present being made as to the causes. Distance no longer separates nations as in former days. Science has made all national boundaries contiguous. And it cannot be hid from the superficial observer that the domestic disorders prevailing in China, unless arrested, must result in embroilments of an international character as the sanitary condition of the country is a menace to the health of the world. Both will have to be attended to at an early date, and both will be to the betterment of China and the general interest.

15 Great Battles -:- Marathon To Waterloo And Valmy

Does Fighting Change History?

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

This is a world of building and tearing down. Inventors and statesmen are builders. Generals and conquerors are destroyers. They are honored. Monuments tell how great they were. Builders often are forgotten.

But war and destruction are often helpful. Tearing down, they make room for new, better building.

Read Creasy's "Decisive Battles of the World," a book that seeks, among millions of fights that have disgraced human beings, those particular fights that have done most to decide the world's history.

Creasy selected fifteen battles, beginning with Marathon, two thousand three hundred and forty years ago, ending with Waterloo, one hundred and five years ago. In the latest edition of "The Fifteen Decisive Battles," other battles have been added, bringing the narrative up to the battle of the Marne. How many chapters will be added in the "decisive battles" book that will be published toward the end of this century?

Will a book published hereafter have a chapter on "The Battle of San Francisco," or telling of the decisive meeting between flying ships of America and Asia to settle control of the Pacific?

Shall we read also "The Battle of Paris," telling how Slavs, Tartars and Germans rushed over the thin line of Western European civilisation and drove it into the sea?

First the battle of Marathon. Athenian officers under the War-Ruler of the year, Callimachus, were gathered in consultation on a slope overlooking the plain of Marathon. They looked down on the great army of Darius, ruler of Persia. Athens was threatened by the mighty empire that had conquered and enslaved practically all of the known world. The army of Darius was gigantic. The Athenians had only ten thousand men. The courageous little State of Plataea added all its forces, one thousand doing for Greece in that emergency what Belgium recently did for France and England.

That was a fine group of men, soon to lead the tiny army that was to destroy the power of Persia and make it possible for the civilisation of Europe to grow from a Greek and not a Persian root. Besides Callimachus, there stood on that hillside Miltiades and Themistocles, who contributed more than any Greek to his country's greatness, and whose "grateful" country drove him at last to die among the Persians. There stood also the famous Aristides, whom one Greek citizen wanted banished because he was tired of hearing him called "the just."

The hero of Marathon is Miltiades, who persuaded the Greeks to attack in spite of inferior numbers. You owe it to him that you speak the language you do instead of some Asiatic tongue.

Darius, who controlled everything in the world except China and the Greeks that dared defy him, had sent an unpleasant mixed army to seek the vengeance he planned, when, according to the Persian custom, "he called for his bow; and, having taken it, and placed an arrow on the string, he let the arrow fly towards heaven; and as he shot it into the air, he said: 'O Supreme God! Grant me that I may avenge myself on the Athenians.'"

Herodotus says the Persians thought the Athenians had gone crazy, when they saw them rushing at the huge Persian army, the Greeks having no horses, no men with bows and arrows in their army, rushing against Darius' "mountaineers from Hyrcania and Afghanistan, wild horsemen from the steppes of Khorasan, the black archers of Ethiopia, swordsmen from the banks of the Indus, the Oxus, the Euphrates, and the Nile," and other assorted fighters.

The Greeks won with their long spears. Their great men, including Aristides and Themistocles, led the fighters. The Persians were driven into the water and onto their ships. Callimachus died trying to set fire to the Persian fleet.

If anything changed the history of the world permanently that battle did it. It left the Greeks in peace to develop the character of Socrates, the philosophy of Plato, the science of Aristotle, the artistic glory of the age of Pericles. It would have been a pity if King Darius had come to Athens, to fire his arrow into the air once more and ask his Persian God to help him conquer all Western Europe.

The second battle is that in which the Athenians were beaten at Syracuse, 413 B. C. Their defeat kept the Greeks from conquering and controlling the Italian peninsula, just as Marathon had prevented the Persians from controlling Greece.

But for the battle of Syracuse, the world might have missed the interesting history of Rome. The French, Spanish and Italian languages would be made up principally of Greek instead of Latin words; the educated Greeks would have gone to Rome as rulers, instead of going as tutors, often as slaves, to teach the children of the wealthy Romans.

In 331 B. C. the battle of Arbela is third in the fifteen decisive battles. At Arbela, Alexander the Great, invading Persia, after beating the Persians on the Ismus, made himself ruler of the world, as Darius had been. Darius died in flight. Alexander was polite to his widow and children.

Alexander fought as desperately and as recklessly as Charles the Twelfth of Sweden. Except for good fortune added to great genius he might have ended as Charles the Twelfth did. Napoleon said: "Alexander deserves the glory which he has enjoyed for so many centuries, and among all nations; but what if he had been beaten at Arbela, having the Euphrates, the Tigris and the deserts in the rear, without any strong places of refuge, nine hundred leagues from Macedonia."

Alexander's victory was due to the fact that every man in his army was his man. Every one had been told there was no reason for being frightened by the elephants of the Persians, or their chariots with sharp scythe blades fastened to the wheels.

The Persian King and forty thousand fighting horsemen, elephants with fighting men on their backs, two hundred chariots with knives on the wheels. Alexander took care of them all, marched into Babylon and became ruler of the world.

The most remarkable part of Alexander's generalship in this fight was his ability to protect his flanks, keeping his army from being enveloped, as it might easily have been, by the overwhelming hosts of the Persians.

The battle of the Metaurus in B. C. 207 is number four, and is well chosen by Creasy, for it is of utmost importance to every human being living in Europe and America now.

In 207 B. C. the waters of a little river that falls into the Adriatic were red with the blood of the armies that Hannibal's brother was bringing from the Pyrenees, the Rhone and the Alps, to enable Carthage to conquer and possess Rome and the Italian peninsula.

The greatest of all generals that ever lived, perhaps, was Hannibal. If his brother could have brought those troops to him, this might be a different world.

Michelet, the great French historian, says that battle of the Metaurus was a "strife on the event of which depended the fate of two races of mankind, whether the dominion of the world should belong to the Indo-Germanic or to the Semitic family of nations."

If the Carthaginians, offshoot of the Phoenicians, greatest, most courageous navigators of the world, had conquered Italy, they would have made a different Europe.

Battle five celebrates the victory in the year A. D. 9 of Arminius, the German leader, over the Roman legions led by Varus.

That did not change the world's history, but hastened the process that brought Germanic tribes from the northeast down into Italy, France, Spain, giving knowledge and culture of the older civilisation to the receptive, powerful minds of the north.

Arminius, the German, had no personal hatred of the Romans; he had been made a citizen, knew the Roman language and civilisation, had served in the Roman armies.

But he objected to the Romans making slaves of young Germans, using some as servants, employing the courage of others fighting wild beasts in the arena to amuse the Roman crowd. Arminius's victory freed German soil from the Roman invader, and inflicted on Roman prestige a wound from which it never recovered.

Battle number six saw the defeat of Attila, the Mongolian leader who had boasted, "Where my war horse plants his foot the grass never again grows."

Attila had marched over the world until, on the broad plains around the city of Chalons, in the year 451 A. D., there was settled the question "whether the Germanic and Gothic warriors should form states and kingdoms out of the fragments of her (Rome's) dominions' and become the free members of the commonwealth of Christian Europe, or whether pagan savages from the wilds of Central Asia should crush the relics of classic civilisation and the early institutions of the Christianised Germans in one hopeless chaos of barbaric conquest."

Again in 732, at Tours, the battle between Asia and Europe was fought out, as it may be in California, some day. At Tours the fighting Franco-Germanic King, Charles Martel, beat the Saracens and stopped the fanaticism of dead Mohammed spreading like wildfire over Europe. Of that battle, Gibbon says that it rescued "our ancestors of Britain and our neighbors of Gaul from the civil and religious yoke of the Koran."

The civilisation which we are carrying on more or less ably today, with our wars, our profiteers, and our mean politics, has had many narrow escapes.

The fighting done by Charles Martel provided one of those escapes. Gibbon says that had the Arabs not then been held in check, "perhaps the interpretation of the Koran would now be taught in the schools of Oxford, and her pulpits might demonstrate to a circumcised people the sanctity and truth of the revelation of Mahomet." Mohammedans, like many other Semitic peoples, practise circumcision.

At the battle of Hastings, 1066, the Normans, led by William the Conqueror, illegitimate son of a tanner's daughter, made themselves masters of the British islands. It was a fine battle, and Harold, the Englishman, fought well, until he was killed, as Englishmen usually do.

In the ninth battle, Joan of Arc led the French and conquered the English at the battle of Orleans. That was important because it discouraged English fighting in France.

The poor girl who gave courage to the miserable French King was burned alive by the English after a religious trial, and the King, whom she had put on his throne, lifted not a hand to save her. When they burned Joan of Arc as a witch, on the 30th of May, 1431, they burned one of the best women the world has ever seen.

Get Michelet's big history of France and read his chapters of Joan of Arc.

Next among the fifteen battles (the book is written by an Englishman) comes the destruction of the Spanish fleet, the "armada," off the coast of England in 1588. Drake and other good sailors of Queen Elizabeth fought well. But the weather did more than the English fighting men to destroy the ungainly armada.

That sea battle which defeated the great fleet sent by a Catholic King against the Protestant Queen Elizabeth ought to interest those that seek to stir up religious strife, as late as 1920.

Creasy's other chosen battles are the battle of Blenheim, 1704, when Marlborough, fighting for the English, destroyed the power of Louis the Fourteenth and the prestige of French monarchy and opened the way for the French Revolution. Children in France still sing about Marlborough, as children in Ireland talk of Cromwell. After Blenheim "Germany was completely delivered from France, and the military ascendency of the arms of the allies was completely established." The word "allies" means one thing at one time, another thing at another time.

The battle of Pultowa marked the downfall of Sweden as one of the great powers of Europe. The influence built up by Charles the Twelfth, as fierce a fighter as ever lived, and by Gustavus, "the Lion of the North," crumbled away. And Russia became the great power, all menacing, that recently went to pieces of its own accord and is now coming to life again with democracy replacing autocracy.

Creasy's thirteenth battle, which the English patriot perhaps did not enjoy discussing, is the battle of Saratoga. That surrender of thirty-five hundred fighting men at Saratoga was one of the great battles of the world, since it changed a little group of American colonies into an American nation. Had England won that war, what would be the power of the British Empire today? Greater, undoubtedly, than any that Darius, Alexander or Napoleon ever dreamed.

The battle of Valmy and the battle of Waterloo are the last two of Creasy's fifteen. The battle of Waterloo established the British Empire and the Rothschild fortune, and destroyed history's last war giant, Napoleon.

The battle of Valmy, apart from material considerations, was infinitely more important than the battle of Waterloo, as important as any one of Creasy's fifteen.

For in the battle of Valmy the revolutionary troops of France met and defeated the soldiers of royalty. That battle sustained the rights of men to rebel against unjust government, of any government that they do not approve.

Unfortunately, that same battle of Valmy, gratifying French love of glory, arousing the military spirit, opened the way for Napoleon's career.

"From the cannonade of Valmy may be dated the commencement of that career of victory which carried their (the French) armies to Vienna and the Kremlin."

Death Of The Table d'Hote

(New York Tribune)

All the sand is carefully washed from the salad greens in the table d'hote restaurants these wineless days. Moreover, the chefs are straining the resources of New York's markets to achieve dinners that will lure the patronage that dwindled when constitutional prohibition transformed claret from a mild, ambition-stirring aid to digestion into bottled crime.

But these efforts are in vain. The red ink joints, as crude people sometimes refer to them, are sparsely occupied each night, while the former patrons crowd into the circassian walnut pastry shops and gorge themselves on Boston cream pie.

Gaston's in 54 West Twenty-sixth Street served dinner for the last time about a week ago. The price of dinner there, including hors d'oeuvres, soup, fish, roast, salad, ice cream, cheese and coffee, was 70 cents. Vin ordinaire was 30 cents a half bottle. When prohibition made the wine illegal the patrons ceased to come until, of the old, familiar faces, the sorrowful garcons were able to recognise only about twenty of each hundred. The number of diners had fallen away 80 percent.

So, after ten prosperous years away from his native France, Gaston became ill. The doctors said it was influenza. More likely it was a broken heart. Anyway, about a week ago Gaston telephoned from his apartment instructions to his assistant manager to put a padlock on the front door.

There is Eugenie's in 112 West Forty-eighth Street. Joseph Minetto is "Eugenie." Prohibition is a difficult subject for this restaurateur.

"Since we stopped serving wine," he said a few days ago, "our business has been cut in half. We used to serve 300 dinners every night. Now we are fortunate if we serve 150. It is the absence of wine. Nothing can replace it. Improve our dinners? Impossible! They are perfection. But unless the law is altered to permit wine, half the table d'hote restaurants will go out of business, and that will be a sad thing for New York."

It is the same story at Charles's in Forty-ninth Street; in Guffanti's in the same street; at that other Gaston's in Forty-fifth Street; at Giolito's in Forty-ninth Street. At this last place the distracted proprietor is scheming to cut down his overhead so that he can continue to make a living out of the 150 dinners that he serves each night in place of 500 ravenously hungry and thirsty people who thronged in there up to January 16—and for a few nights thereafter until they discovered that he was determined to obey the law. Giolito is not at all sanguine about the prospect of keeping his restaurant open.

So it would seem that New Yorkers all these years when they were supposed to have been "dining out" actually were "drinking out." They say that claret was shipped into New York from California in tank cars like so much crude oil.

The fact of the matter is that it is well-nigh impossible to wade through a first class—that is, a dollar table d'hote—dinner in New York without some sort of anaesthetic. After a tumbler of vin ordinaire the normal human appetite accepts cold storage chicken as thankfully as freshly killed fowl. Without it—

But prohibition has injured and even ruined other classes of restaurants. Sherry's was one of the first to close. That was last May. The quarter of a million dollars' worth of wines and liquors were disposed of first to discriminating customers, then the furnishings were sold at auction.

Louis Sherry could take no interest in the restaurant business without the privilege of dispensing wines, with the achievements of Pascal, his chef. It was the most fashionable restaurant in the city at the time it was closed, and if the place had been closed a year earlier it is very unlikely that Delmonico's, across the street, would be in the hands of a receiver now.

The creditors of Delmonico's forced receivership just a few days before it became known that Louis Sherry was quitting, and it was the rivalry with Sherry's, according to the receiver, that had got New York's oldest restaurant into deep water—that and the prospect of prohibition.

Mouquin's, for more than a quarter of a century a favorite of Manhattanites forced to dine downtown, closed the front door in 20 Ann street and the rear door in Fulton Street on January 16, after a strenuous final week of existence, in which business and professional men came and ate and drank solemnly as pilgrims at a shrine.

An idea of the volume of business transacted in that establishment during those final days may be had from the tips gathered in by the old waiters. In a normal week their earnings averaged, including salary and tips, about $60. In the last week all of them gathered in more than $150, and two or three made $200. In front of the restaurant and in the rear were long lines of trucks, taxicabs and limousines, the chauffeurs waiting for the charterers or owners to give the signal to drive up to the door and take aboard a cargo of liquid treasure.

Red and white wines were served at Mouquin's in small carafons. Somehow it seemed almost impossible to resist taking the wine card from Emile or one of his smiling associates; and if the wine card was waved away it was usually done with a request for "carafon rouge" or "carafon blanc," which was less expensive than selecting from the wine list.

From his place of retirement on a farm in Virginia old Henry Mouquin ordered his son Louis to close the downtown restaurant until the business has had an opportunity to stabilise itself Sometime between now and next winter downtown Mouquin's will be reopened at a new address for the serving of luncheons.

Uptown Mouquin's, in 454 Sixth Avenue, remained open in spite of prohibition, but business fell away to an alarming degree. The absence of a wine list was emphasised by the Continental benches lining the wall of the lower floor of the establishment. Those sort of furnishings were never meant for a wineless meal.

It was announced a few days ago that old Rector's, at Broadway and Forty-eighth Street, now known as the Cafe de Paris, under the management of Gil Boag, would be remodeled as a cafeteria. From cabaret to cafeteria! Instead of blond Gilda Gray and her seductive shimmy a row of flatfooted women behind steam tables.

But many restaurant men believe that the New York cabarets without alcoholic support will become in the course of a few years as hard to find as the dodo. About two-thirds are expected to close up before the end of the summer.

Greenwich Village is suffering, too. The Lafayette, where the diners play chess, checkers or some other game over the black coffee, formerly served about eight hundred dinners each night. One night last week a count of these at the tables at what formerly was the busiest moment revealed exactly sixteen not very joyful eaters.

How To Dodge The Sheriff

BY RING W. LARDNER

To The Editor:

A great many of my creditors and other pals has probably been wondering how come that whereas a year ago I was all most shakeing hands with the referee in bankruptcy whereas I am now on my ft. again and pretty near got enough money to pay my grocery bill for last Nov.

Well friends when I find out a good thing I am not the kind of a bird that will keep it to themself but I will pass it along and tell my pals about it so as they can take advantages and pull themselfs out of the hole the same like I did. But in order to give my pals the benefit of my experience I will half to begin at the beginning as they say and if you boys and girls can profit by my experience why so much the better as the saying goes.

Well about a year ago I was talking with my wife and myself one night and she says how is it that I and you are making about 200 herries per wk. more or less and we owe everybody in Illinois except the gov. and on the other hand here is the Quayles liveing next doors to us and him only getting 40 thousand per annum and yet they seem to enjoy themselfs a whole lot more than we and don't owe nothing.

So I said what of it.

"Well," she says, "I been reading the magazines a whole lot lately and I seen a ad in one signed by the Rainy Day Corporation and its suppose to tell a husband and their wife how to get themself on their ft. and the course only costs $3.00, so why not let us subscribe for it and you don't half to pay in advance, but first you get the course and read it and then you can pretend like you don't care nothing about it and send it back to them and they refund you the 3 spot."

So I said all right like I usually do when she speaks to me at all and she sent for the course and it come in the form of 5 books witch I didn't have time to read but she read them and sent it back to them with the words that it wasn't no good, but at that it was good enough to get us out of our troubles and look at us now.

Well the idear was this in a few words. In the first place most of our debts was owed in driblets like ten dollars, and the books says:

"If you owe ten dollars apiece to a whole lot of people in the same town, why the idear is to quietly move out of that town as far as you can and move to some other town, and the merchants and etc., back in the old town won't sew you because it would cost more than the debts is worth." So one night we quietly moved out of the old town and moved to Conn. and we haven't heard nothing since from people we owe money to in old Chi, except a couple of threatening letters that scares a person about as much like as if Bryan said he wouldn't run.

Well, the next lesson in the course was to get yourself a job that paid more money, so one day I went down to N. Y. City and went in a man's office that I had heard about him, and I said I wasn't getting enough money in old Chi: so he said what did I want, and I said I wanted a raise, and he give it to me.

So, as I say, here we are living in Connecticut and get more sflary than out in old Chi, and all our debts repudiated, and they can't sew us on acct. of how much it costs on acct. of the distants, and here we are liveing in the lapse of luxury in Greenwich, and all as we half to do is to keep out of old Chi or else go there incognito, and all on acct. of the wife seeing the Rainy Day Corporation ad. in this here magazine, witch the pure reading matter was so bad that she felt like she had to read the ads.

Now, gents, I don't want you to take my testimony without no supports, so I will tell you about a couple of friends of mine along the same lines that was in pretty near pickle like we and seen the same ad. and got the same results or better, as follows: beginning with a letter I got from a friend of mine name Chas. Clarke, as follows:

"Dear old Pal. You know how I and Mildred use to struggle along wile I was earning $10.00 per wk. as clerk in the Bon Ton Market witch my uncle owned it and I was the only heir. Well one day Mildred read me the Rainy Day Corporation's ad. in one of the magazines about how to pull yourself out of the rut so she wrote them and they wrote back adviseing me to quit being a clerk and become the prop. so one day I took a big cleaver and used it on my uncle and by the time I got through they wasn't enough left of him to be prop. of a soda fountain in Cuba so now I and Mildred is running the market and last year we layed away $1.65."

The other letter is from a carpenter friend of mine that lives at Fifth avenue and 70 st. and in 2 yrs. he was only able to save $220,000 so one day him and his wife happened to see each other and begin talking and she seen this ad. and wrote to the Rainy Day Corporation and they wrote back and told him to raze he--ll and get more money so he wrote to the union and told them he wouldn't carp no more unless they give him more money so they give him a raze and now he is makeing more than a st. car conductor and not haveing ½ as good a time.

That is the way it come off boys and girls and if you are satisfied to go along worring about financial affairs why well and good but if my little talk has showed you a way out why I am satisfied without no further munerations only the knowledge that I helped drag you out of the Meyer.
